Society

The home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rulo, 224 E. Monroe st., was the scene of a charming wedding Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Helen Rulo became the bride of Arthur William Fries, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Fries, 316 N. Cushing st. Rev. M. A. Goffney of the German Evangelical Zion church performed the ceremony. Miss Anita Pfeiffer was the maid of honor and Earl C. Fries the best man. White and yellow roses adorned the reception hall and drawing room, while palms filled the bay windows. Following the ceremony a supper was served. The guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Castetter and daughter of Jonesboro, Ark. Mr. and Mrs. Fries left for Chicago and Detroit, after which they will be at home at 714 Second st., Canton, O. The groom is department manager of the Berger Co., Canton, O.

The wedding of Miss Grace Cummins, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. E. Cummins, 129 W. Colfax av., to Parkman Howe of Boston, Mass., will take place Oct. 23.

Invitations have been issued for a luncheon to be given Sept. 4 by Mrs. J. M. Studebaker, Jr., in honor of Miss Mary Jane Fish, who will be married in the early fall.

Mrs. J. M. Studebaker, sr., entertained at a 5 o'clock tea Wednesday afternoon. The table was set in the garden and verandas were used as decorations.

Miss Jessamy Fountain will entertain with a porch party Thursday.

TANGO BROOCH IS ONE OF THE VERY LATEST

This and the Kneelot Are Now Being Worn With the Silt Skirt.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—There may be nothing new under the sun, but there are things worn under the new silt skirt, that Solomon never dreamed of. The greatest of these, according to retail jewelers for their national convention are the sautoir and the tango brooch.

The sautoir, worn for the benefit of the jewelers, by pretty Vivian Smelter Wednesday, resembles a lavalier with diamonds set in platinum. It is suspended by a black ribbon, worn around the thigh and swings on this ribbon pendulum so that it was just visible at the top of the silt as Miss Smelter walked. Now the jewelers saw it, and now they didn't. The tango brooch, for conservatives who would shy at anything so daring as the kneelot, circles the leg just above the ankle.

ONE OF THE STUNNING OUTDOOR COSTUMES IMPORTED FROM PARIS THIS FALL

It is a Callot model and was built exclusively for one of the most charming of American actresses.

The skirt is of black velvet, narrow and slashed at the front where it shows a lining of black and white striped satin. The coat is of taupe gray duvetine, made very simply in Russian peasant fashion, with black velvet sleeves set in the long shoulders.

A black velvet belt hangs low in front and has one of the new butterfly bows at the back, with one long end of velvet hanging down the back.

The hat is a close black velvet, and its only thing is a couple of black lace butterflies on the tips of swaying black quills.

With this costume is carried a slender black cane.

Black low shoes, silver buckles and gray silk hose complete this charming costume.

TO PICK QUEEN OF FARM SHOW

To be Ruler of South Bend for the Time and Will Have Eight Maids of Honor.

On the evening of Sept. 29 a young lady attired in garments befitting her exalted station, and wearing a large solitaire diamond ring, the gift of her many loyal friends, will be escorted by eight maids of honor to a raised dais or throne, especially erected for the occasion, and there surrounded by an armed guard of her loyal subjects, will be crowned queen of the exposition.

Immediately after this ceremony she will touch a tiny button, which will connect the wires that control thousands of electric lights all over the city, a dozen immense searchlights on the highest buildings in the city will flash into the heavens their powerful beams, announcing to the inhabitants of all the villages and cities within a radius of 20 miles, that the Farmers, Manufacturers and Merchants exposition is formally and officially opened. A concert band of 40 pieces will render for the first time a stirring march, "The Spirit of South Bend" dedicated to the newly crowned queen.

What young lady will receive this honor and homage? This will be decided by ballot by her friends. There will be nine polling places in the city where votes may be cast. The location of these voting booths will be at the most popular places in South Bend—"The Movies." In short, here is the method that has been decided upon. Every person visiting any of the moving picture houses in the city, at any time, from Monday morning, Sept. 2, until Thursday, Sept. 25 at midnight, will receive in addition to their admission ticket a voting coupon, wherein is to be written the name of the young lady of their choice. There are nine moving picture theaters in the city and in the lobby of each theater will be placed a ballot box. It will not be necessary to vote at the time the coupon is received, but at any time within the week at any of the voting places. The results will be tabulated and announced every day. The young lady who will receive the greatest number of votes, will be elected queen. The eight young ladies receiving the next highest number of votes, will be elected maids of honor. As a special prize the queen will receive a large solitaire diamond, valued at $100, beautifully mounted into a ring. The diamond is now on exhibition in the show window of the Mayr jewelry store.

There is no doubt but that all the

WEDDING GIFTS SHOULD PLEASE

Not Always Most Expensive Present That Bride Will Appreciate Most.

Nearly every woman is aware that there is a knack in the selection of the proper wedding present. It is practically an easy matter to select most anything to give the bride, but there should be something more than that in making the selection. The giver of the present should try to find out just what the bride needs, just what she likes and just what would please her more than anything else. It is not always the most expensive present which is the most appropriate and the most liked. A little, inexpensive article can give just as much pleasure as one costing a hundred times as much.

To select the proper present for a relative or a very close friend is, however, much easier than to select one for the comparative stranger. In most cases, with the comparative stranger, cut glass is finally decided upon. The new ways present and appropriate, but there are many other things from which the giver can make her selections.

Many Inexpensive Gifts. There are very many inexpensive things to be had in Sheffield. There are few brides who would not be pleased with a squatty Guernsey pitcher, the handle covered with the weaving of a fine reed. Then there are baking dishes, with Sheffield rims, toast racks, vegetable dishes, with compartments for holding two or three vegetables—just the proper idea for the small family—tea-caddies, green of ramekins, and any number of other articles. Sugar tongs make a very appropriate gift for the bride, the gold ones being especially pretty in the home designs.

A set of ice spoons is more expensive, but it is pretty. The newest novelties in silverware for the bride are fashioned after the old Colonial silverware. The jewelers have taken the old Mount Vernon and Monticello silverware as models and have fashioned their modern productions as much like the old-time pieces as possible. This silverware is very pretty, but it costs considerable.

Silver Corn Holders. Another novelty of the last few years is the silver holder for succulent sweet corn. It has gotten to a point where these holders are almost necessary in the household, and they are sold in sets of a half dozen.

A very appropriate wedding present is a set of two of candle shades suitable for the dining room table. It is best to choose them in designs and colorings that will not go amiss with any scheme in dining room decoration. As pale yellow is the color of the candle light itself, this color of shade is usable in almost any room where other and deeper colors are quite apt to clash. Just now there is a fad for candle shades made of color prints, copies of old English and French ones, and these are very quaint and pretty as wedding gifts. It is never a good plan to give pictures unless one knows the tastes of both the bride and groom. All people do not like the same pictures, and it is certainly a difficult matter to make the proper selections.

The pretty new trays are excellent wedding gifts, and they do not cost a large amount. A tray of mahogany with a silver rim, or a tray of green wicker framing a circle chintz makes a delightful gift. Still another tray of the same sort is of plated or solid silver. One of the few fern baskets is also quite appropriate, while a waste basket in Japanese wicker, with its beautiful deep brown tones, will be joyously received anywhere.

The Right Glass.

There are some glasses which, at first trial, seem to be absolutely correct for your eyes, but are really the worst thing for you to wear. Print looks clear and distinct for half an hour but after that the eyes begin to tire. I can show you a dozen pairs of glasses that you will say are all alike but only one of them is what you really need. You cannot select glasses by guess work. All the defects and weaknesses of your eyes must be considered and a glass selected that will put them in normal condition. With the right glass you can read all of the evening without feeling it. Your eyes feel rested and comfortable. All of my glasses are the "right" kind.
